Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on January 15, 2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bressi et al. (U.S. Patent 7,154,002).

Bressi et al. teach the use of the claim-designated compound as a well-known HDAC inhibitor. See columns 3 and 4, second compound. The above reference also teaches the use of HDAC inhibitors for the treatment of conditions of abnormal angiogenesis, such as macular degeneration and diabetic retinopathy. See column 33, lines 45-55. It would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art to use the claimed compound for the treatment of macular degeneration and diabetic retinopathy, motivated by the teachings of Bressi et al. reference, which teaches HDAC inhibitors have been previously used for the treatment of macular degeneration and diabetic retinopathy.

One skilled in the art would have been motivated to employ the teachings of the above reference, since it relates to the use of the claimed compound as an HDAC inhibitor, and also to the use of HDAC inhibitors for the treatment of conditions of abnormal angiogenesis, such as macular degeneration and diabetic retinopathy. The substitution of one HDAC inhibitor for another would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art in the absence of evidence to the contrary. Applicant has presented no evidence to establish the unexpected or unobvious nature of the claimed invention, and as such, claims 1-5 are properly rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103 (a).

Applicant's arguments and remarks have been carefully considered, but are not deemed to be persuasive. Applicant in his remarks argues that one skilled in the art would not have been motivated to arrive at the present invention based on Bressi et al., because Bressi et al. did not disclose the agents enzymes and protein interaction selectively, and because there was a lack of knowledge with respect to whether a specific HDAC enzyme inhibition pattern was required for the alleged ocular anti-angiogenic effects. The arguments are not well taken. Bressi et al. with the filing date prior to applicant's filing date, teach that the claim designated compound is an HDAC inhibitor. Such reference also teaches that the HDAC inhibitors can be used for the treatment of abnormal angiogenesis disorders, such as macular degeneration. Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art to use the claimed compound for the treatment of macular degeneration. The invention is obvious when there is a teaching, suggestion, or motivation to combine prior art teachings. The teachings, suggestions or motivation may be found in the prior art, in the nature of the problem or in the knowledge of a person having ordinary skill in the art. See KSR, 82 USPQ2d 1385 (2007).
